

Social and Personal

ALTOGETHER charming and delightful was the musical given yesterday afternoon by Little Miss Marie Adele Adkins at the Woman's Club. This was her first appearance in a recital at the club, and a regular ovation awaited her. With all the poise and manner which many older musicians lack, Little Miss Adkins responded to the applause of her audience with charming grace, and the most pleasing concert that has been given at the club for some time.

Her interpretation of the De Beriot concerto was marked by artistic style and finish. She is destined to become a great virtuoso, for she has not only a broad intelligence and a quick musical instinct beyond her years, but she has what is absolutely essential in the making of a true artist—passion for study and exacting work.

Mrs. Frances Kaspar Lawson assisted the young violinist and gave a number of charming songs, which were quite pleasing and much applauded. She is a very beautiful woman, with a lovely soprano voice, and is well known in musical circles of Washington, where she makes her home. Her husband, Mr. Lawson, is a member of the "Indian Bell Song" from "Lak Me" and "The Last Rose of Summer." Miss Redford accompanied both Mrs. Lawson and Miss Adkins.

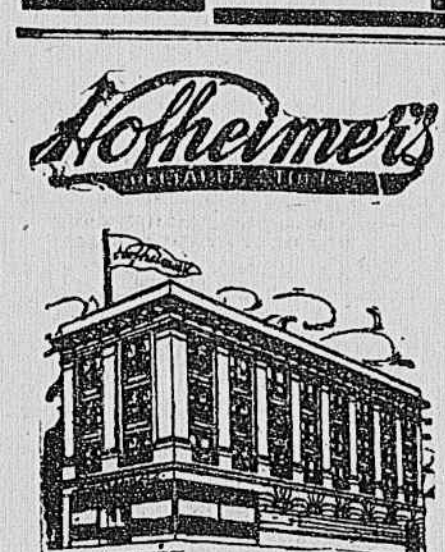

The tables were decorated in bowls of pink tulips and hostesses for the afternoon included Miss Evelyn Stiles, Miss Jean Field and Miss Rena Glazebrook. Guests for the afternoon were Miss Alice Lawton, of Baltimore; Fraulien Hennes, of Berlin; Mrs. Packwood, of Boston; Mrs. Triplett Haxall, Miss Rose Haxall, of Baltimore; Mrs. Bristol and Mrs. Gilman.

The Literature Class will meet this afternoon at 5 o'clock to discuss Byron, Shelley and Keats. Members are asked to note the change in the hour of the club meetings.

The two large new public school buildings, the Lee and the Jackson, erected on West Washington Street at a cost of nearly $100,000, including sites, buildings and equipment, will be opened for pupils at Easter. The new schools are of modern architecture, thoroughly sanitary and possessing every convenience. Each has twelve class rooms and a large assembly hall, and each is capable of comfortably accommodating 600 pupils. This will relieve in a large measure the congestion in other schools.

More than ordinary interest was shown by the public in this first day's work of Congress. That the present Congress will take action on a few of the measures suggested by the executive is believed probable, and it is not unlikely that the revision of the electoral laws, and the "no-recalculation" feature will come up early in the session.

A tone of confidence was more than ever noticeable in official circles to-day that an early termination of the revolution was in sight.

While no definite basis for such belief was obtainable, it was said officially that it was extremely probable that within a short time grounds on which peace conditions could be built would be found.

Nearly all the Mexican papers printed articles commending the attitude of the President, and expressing the hope that it would result in peace.

On the part of the government, there is made no attempt to deny that the reforms were proposed because of popular demand. This demand comes not only from the rebels, but from many who are constantly being changed. Madero was justified in plunging his country into civil war to alter the conditions. The latter element did, however, always offer the possibility of furnishing rebel recruits, and it is now pointed out that support from this source is rendered useless.

There is now no reason to think that President Diaz contemplates doing anything more than he has done.
